

Forest-Friendly Field Guide

Directions

1. Grab some binoculars and print off these pages using sustainable or recycled paper.
2. Cut out the photos and logos on this page and have someone tape them to a wall. No peeking at their locations!
3. Standing about 20 steps away, pretend you are an orangutan field biologist searching for orangutans in the wild. Using the field guide, check off what you find and learn more.

Forest-Friendly Field Guide

- Now that you have found all three species of orangutans, be sure to learn more about them.
- All orangutans are threatened with extinction in the wild. The good news is that you can help them. Just like how you are looking for logos using this field guide, you can look for these logos when you are out shopping for paper, wood, food and bath products.
- The logos on this field guide let you know you are buying products made in a way that does not harm the forests that orangutans call home. Does your favorite product not have a logo? Make sure to encourage the companies that make your favorite products to be forest-friendly, just like you.

Sumatran Orangutan

Bornean Orangutan

Tapanuli Orangutan

Rainforest Alliance

Roundtable on Sustainable Palm Oil

Forestry Stewardship Council